BATTLE OF SANTIAGO

Admiral Schley Describes That Memorable Event.

PRAISES ALL HIS MEN

He Goes into Details of That Loop the Brooklyn Made and Justifies Every Action, Not Only of the Brooklyn, but All the Warships.

Washington, Oct. 26. — When the Schley court of inquiry adjourned yesterday Admiral Schley had not completed his testimony. He was on the stand from 11:30 a. m. to 3:46 p. m. Court adjourned until Monday, 20 minutes in advance of the usual time because the admiral's throat had become somewhat sensitive as a result of his continuous talking Thursday and Friday.

The chief event of the day was the admiral's relation of the events of July 3, when the American fleet sent Cervera's squadron to the bottom of the sea, or to the beach. He told his story of this historical occurrence in plain words and unaffected style, but the narrative was straightforward and to the point, indicating close familiarity with all the phases of that event. He said that the Brooklyn for a time sustained the fire of all four of the Spanish ships and also the fire of the Spanish land batteries.

Explaining the historical turn of his own flagship, the Brooklyn, he said that he had not approached to within less than 600 yards of the Texas and that he never had considered that vessel in the least dangerous. He also stated in response to an interrogation from Mr. Raynor, that he had never used the expression attributed to him by Hodgson. This refers to the alleged colloquy in which the admiral is charged with having said: "Damn the Texas."

Admiral Schley also gave details of the reconnaissance of May 31, when the Spanish ship Christobal Colon was bombarded. He denied the statements attributed to him by Commander Potts of the battleship Massachusetts.

Admiral Schley started his description of the battle of July 3 this way:

"On the morning of July 3 day broke beautifully. After I had eaten breakfast I came up to take a survey of the situation with glasses. We were lying at that time possibly three miles from the land and I wondered why they had permitted us to remain so close. At a quarter to nine, my orderly reported that a signal had been made from the flagship to disregard her movements and that she had gone eastward. Whilst I was sitting abaft on a hatchway, I heard a call from the forward bridge, 'Tell the commodore the fleet is coming out.' That was some time after the men had been called to quarters, about 9:35 o'clock. 'Well,' I said, 'go right for them.' The helm was put apart. The ship was started ahead, and when we headed around I said to Captain Cook, 'Go ahead full speed and hoist signal to clear ship for action.'

"That signal was followed by 'close up for close action.' The Brooklyn and the other vessels charged immediately into the entrance in accordance with the original plan of seeking the enemy's ships in the entrance or driving them ashore. We continued directly for the head of the enemy's column, the idea uppermost in my mind being that if we could arrest them long enough for the battleships to close in and knock them to pieces that would be our best point of attack. I suppose from the time we started, we were 10 or 12 minutes turning, first with port helm and then advancing direct to the enemy. I saw the ships to the eastward and westward soon close in. I said to Captain Cook, 'close action or close up has been hoisted' and it meant to keep inside of 1000 yards. I looked over the starboard side and saw the enemy coming out of the harbor.

"I then looked eastward to see the order of the ships and I saw the Texas apparently a point or more abaft the starboard beam, heading on some of the easterly courses. To the left and east of her was the Iowa. The Oregon was to the eastward of the Iowa. The Indiana was eastward of that position and the Gloucester was lying in under the land. The New York was out of sight and out of signal distance with glasses. The moment I saw that, I went forward on to a little platform I had constructed upon the battle tower and in a moment was joined by Captain Cook. Mr. Hodgson, who was on the upper bridge, sang out something to the captain about being connected up and all ready and he at the same time sang to me 'Commodore, they are coming right

"Out of their effective torpedo range Captain Cook said: 'Yes, we will soon be between the cross fire of these ships.'

"I said 'yes' and I then saw we had advanced without firing. The first gun I think was fired by Lieutenant Simpson. I saw the leading ship, which apparently had started with the intention of ramming, take a turn ahead to the westward, leaving a gap between her and the ship following, the Viscaya. We were advancing in the direction of the Viscaya when she also seemed to have given up the intention to ram and turned to the westward. It then became apparent, as we were steering on diametrically opposite courses, that the original plan had failed and that the Spanish fleet had succeeded in passing the battleship line.

"A new feature of the fight became immediately apparent. Captain Cook gave the order to port helm. I did not. I should have done it in a second. I saw the ship's head swinging very rapidly and I asked him whether his helm was hard apart and he replied that it was apart or hard apart. I think he said hard apart. I never saw the starboard side of the Texas at all. We were never across her bow. I never was at her port side and she never approached any position that was within 600 yards of the Brooklyn. She never entered into my head at all as a menace or danger. We passed completely around the circle.

"The last range that was given was 1100 yards and the fact of the nearness of that ship (the second Spanish ship) impressed itself upon my mind because I could see with the naked eye, men running over her turrets, her superstructure deck and I observed the daylight between their legs as they ran. During the turn Mr. Hodgson very properly made some allusion to the outlook, perhaps for the Texas. I do not recall what it was, but there was never any colloquy of any character, between Hodgson and myself.

"Before we turned, the leading ship was abeam or a little abaft and when turned about she was ahead of us; that is, on the starboard bow and all four ships and the forts were firing at the same time and from that moment, the following 10 or 15 minutes were the most furious part of this entire combat. The roar of projectiles was one of the things than can be heard only once in a lifetime and then never forgotten. It appeared at that moment that all four of those ships were at work upon the Brooklyn, and up to the moment of turning, so far as we could perceive, there was not the slightest evidence that they had ever been injured. At that moment I felt that we were alone and perhaps have most of the fight upon ourselves, because I did not know then that the battleships could possibly keep up their speed. But I said to Capt. Cook we must stay with this crowd. I had not an idea that we would escape. Of course, if they could have shot as well as our people did, they certainly would have got us.

"When we had completely turned around I saw the Oregon breaking through the smoke on the starboard quarter of the flagship. I had hoisted the signal of 'close up' and then 'follow the flag,' feeling that a new disposition was necessary. The Brooklyn and the Oregon were firing in a manner I had never seen before. I never before realized what rapid gun fire was. Both ships were at the time a sheet of flame.

"Soon after that I saw that the leading ship was evidently battered hard. She lagged astern. I saw smoke coming out of her ports and out of her hatches and the fact that impressed itself upon me was that the columns were going straight up in the air.

"I said to Captain Cook, 'we have got one. Keep the boys below informed of all the movements, they cannot see and they ought to know,' and he did so throughout the action. Every few moments messages were sent below to the men that were answered often with cheers which we could hear through the ventilators. Shortly after I saw a ship on fire, the Oquendo. She started immediately in shore, leaving the Viscaya and the Colon. The Viscaya took a leading position on the bow and I thought for a little while she would out-foot us.

"The Colon worked in shore and the time between the dropping out of action of those two ships until the Viscaya tunned in shore was perhaps 30 minutes, during which she was abreast of the Brooklyn and Oregon, she was 2400 yards away in most excellent target range and a marine stationed in the top reported that he did not see any of the shots of the Brooklyn and the Oregon hitting the water so I imagined they were striking the ship."

Admiral Schley then told with feeling of the death of Ellis, who was the stadiometer expert.

Returning from this chase Admiral Schley told of passing the Iowa when he was hailed by Captain Evans, who informed him that Admiral Cervera was on board and would like very much to see him. Admiral Schley said that he then went aboard the Iowa, having in the meantime directed his men not to cheer as he did not think it would be proper to exult over a foe who had

PHILADELPHIA FIRE.

Twenty Dead Bodies Found and Still Eighteen Persons Missing.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Another body has been recovered from the ruins of the Hunt, Wilkinson & Co. building on Market street, which was destroyed Friday by fire, making the number dead 20. There are still 18 missing, and it is generally believed the bodies of these are buried under the debris. The last body recovered was that of a man, but it was so badly charred as to be unrecognizable. A force of men was at work all through Friday night, but very little impression was made upon the tons of debris. and it will be some days before the number of fatalities can be definitely determined.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Eighteen known dead and property loss amounting to $500,000 is the awful result of a fire which occurred Friday in the business section of the city. Fully a score of injured were treated at various hospitals. Police and firemen delved into the ruins all Friday in search of bodies supposed to have been buried beneath the debris as it was feared that others besides the known dead may have lost their lives in the flames. The buildings destroyed were structure occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., upholsterers, and a 3-story building occupied by small merchantmen.

CZOLGOSZ' BODY.

His Father Will Take It to Cleveland and Bury It There.

Cleveland, Oct. 26.—Although the brother and brother-in-law of Leon Czolgosz have been at Auburn, N. Y., nothing has been heard from them by the assassin's father and he does not know whether he will see his doomed son alive again or not.

"If the boy wants to see me, and the police will let me see him, I will go there at once," said the father. "I expected to hear from Waldeck before this, but have not heard a word."

Although the father says the body of the assassin will be brought here for burial he says he has not made any arrangements for interment. He only says he will bury the body of the assassin in Cleveland if he has to buy a lot outside of the cemetery and form a cemetery of his own.

Brother Permitted to See Czolgosz.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Czolgosz's brother, Waldek, and his brother-in-law have arrived at the prison. The former was admitted, but the warden was not satisfied as to the identity of the latter and he was not allowed to enter. It is believed the visit has something to do with the claiming of the remains of the assassin after his electrocution.

Profits in Rice Culture.

Austin, Oct. 26.—Hon. Jonathan Lane of Houston, who is here on business with the railroad commission, speaks enthusiastically of the rice industry in Matagorda and Wharton counties. Mr. Lane is an officer of the Bay Prairie Rice and Irrigating company, which owns 25,000 acres of land in Wharton county, 6000 of which is in rice, and the crop is now being thrashed. He states that the yield is all the way from a minimum of 40 bushels to the acre to a maximum of 110 bushels to the acre, and that the 6000 acres grown by his company will yield a minimum of 250,000 bushels, which at an average of 80 cents per bushel would bring $200,000.

New Gas Well in Kansas.

Chanute, Oct. 26. The seventh successive well on Gas ridge, just south of here, has been brought in with twice the flow of any well in this field. Gas ridge is a comparatively new field, on considerably higher ground than the original field, a mile east, which supplies the city and has yielded 70 strong gas wells in the past 60 days. The drillers in charge assert that this one beats any they have ever drilled anywhere. Its roaring can be heard a long distance and has attracted constant streams of visitors. This well has at least 70 feet of gas sand.

Hubbard Buys Huntington Stock.

San Francisco, Oct. 26.—According to The Call advices from New York state that General Hubbard has bought all of the Huntington holdings in the Pacific Improvement company. The sum paid for 12,500 shares, or one-fourth of the stock of the corporation, was $2,500,000, or $200 per share. It is not known whether General Hubbard purchased the stock on his own account or for others. There are reports to the effect that Mrs. Stanford's 12,500 shares may soon be acquired by the same interests that purchased the Huntington stock.

Lynching at Quitman.

Mincola, Tex., Oct. 26.—A mob battered down the jail doors at Quitman at 9 o'clock last night and took out Gaines Gordon, a negro, and lynched him. The negro confessed to the brutal murder of Bud Shoemaker, a farmer, who was waylaid, robbed and then beaten to death last Wednesday.

Bohemian Author Buried.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Paul Allieri, the Bohemian author, killed by a railway train in Texas, was buried here Friday. Thousands of Bohemians, including a delegation from Texas and representatives of Bohemian organizations in various parts of the country were at the funeral.

Greatest Financial Power.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Sir Christopher Furness, an Englishman now visiting this city, and who is recognized as one of the most eminent authorities on financial and economic matters, declares that "the United States is destined to become the greatest financial power in the world."

THE FIRST CLASH.

Delegate from Bolivia Upsets Pan-American Congress Delegates.

City of Mexico, Oct. 26.—The discussions of the Pan-American congress are assuming a character which displeases those who are hoping for the success of the gathering. At Friday's session chapter first of the proposed regulations relative to the powers of the secretary general was approved. When chapter second was reached it was practically set aside and a committee appointed which will have power to appoint other committees to fix the points which the conference is to discuss. This may mean that all Chili's effort to secure the restriction of arbitration to future questions may prove fruitless.

Though no specially contentious points have yet been reached, a certain irritability is apparent among the members of the congress.

The delegate of Bolivia, Guachalla, flew into a rage owing to an imaginary lack of courtesy on the part of Jose Romero, a nephew of the late Ambassador Romero, and translator. He raised his voice and spoke angrily and it appeared that only a spark was needed to produce an explosion.

Boy in Prison for Life.

La Porte, Ind., Oct. 26.—Smith Jones aged but 13 years, has been received at the northern prison to serve a life sentence for murder. Warden Shideler says Jones is the youngest convict received in the history of the prison, and it is said no other penal institution in the United States has so young a prisoner who has been convicted of first degree murder. Smith Jones killed a man with a knife 12 years his senior. The latter is alleged to have taunted Jones, and the boy retaliated by drawing a knife and stabbing his victim to death.

Divorce from a Dying Husband.

Fort Dodge, Ia., Oct. 26.—While her husband was lying at a lonely farmhouse in the country at the point of death from internal injuries received in a runaway, Mrs. Chris Rayne appeared in court here as petitioner for divorce. Mrs. Rayne secured a divorce on the ground of habitual drunkenness.

Local Option Case.

Waxahatchie, Tex., Oct. 26.—The case of the state of Texas vs. R. G. Vangan, being the first of a number of local option cases from the Italy and Milford precincts, was ended here. The jury brought a verdict of guilty and assessed the punishment at $50 fine and 40 days in jail, which with the costs will probably aggregate $600.

Admiral Schley also gave details of the reconnaissance of May 31, when the Spanish ship Chrystobal Colon was bombarded. He denied the statements attributed to him by Commander Potts of the battleship Massachusetts.

Admiral Schley started his description of the battle of July 3 this way: "On the morning of July 3 day broke beautifully. After I had eaten breakfast I came up to take a survey of the situation with glasses. We were lying at that time possibly three miles from the land and I wondered why they had permitted us to remain so close. At a quarter to nine, my orderly reported that a signal had been made from the flagship to disregard her movements and that she had gone eastward. The ship was started ahead, and when we headed around I said to Captain Cook, 'Go ahead full speed and hoist signal to clear ship for action.'

"That signal was followed by 'close up for close action.' The Brooklyn and the other vessels charged immediately into the entrance in accordance with the original plan of seeking the enemy's ships in the entrance or driving them ashore. We continued directly for the head of the enemy's column, the idea uppermost in my mind being that if we could arrest them long enough for the battleships to close in and knock them to pieces that would be our best point of attack. I suppose from the time we started, we were 10 or 12 minutes turning, first with port helm and then advancing direct to the enemy. I saw the ships to the eastward and westward soon close in. I said to Captain Cook, 'close action or close up has been hoisted' and it meant to keep inside of 1000 yards. I looked over the starboard side and saw the enemy coming out of the harbor.

"I then looked eastward to see the order of the ships and I saw the Texas apparently a point or more abaft the starboard beam, heading on some of the easterly courses. To the left and east of her was the Iowa. The Oregon was to the eastward of the Iowa. The Indiana was eastward of that position and the Gloucester was lying in under the land. The New York was out of sight and out of signal distance with glasses. The moment I saw that, I went forward on to a little platform I had constructed upon the battle tower and in a moment was joined by Captain Cook. Mr. Hodgson, who was on the upper bridge, sang out something to the captain about being connected up and all ready and he at the same time sang to me 'Commodore, they are coming right at us.'

"Out of their effective torpedo range Captain Cook said: 'Yes, we will soon be between the cross fire of these ships.' 'I said 'yes' and I then saw we had advanced without firing. The first gun I think was fired by Lieutenant Simpson. I saw the leading ship, which apparently had started with the intention of ramming, take a turn ahead to the westward, leaving a gap between her and the ship following, the Viscaya. We were advancing in the direction of the Viscaya when she also seemed to have given up the intention to ram and turned to the westward. It then became apparent, as we were steering on diametrically opposite courses, that the original plan had failed and that the Spanish fleet had succeeded in passing the battleship line.

"A new feature of the fight became immediately apparent. Captain Cook gave the order to port helm. I did not. I should have done it in a second. I saw the ship's head swinging very rapidly and I asked him whether his helm was hard astern and he replied that it was astern or hard astern. I think he said hard astern. I never saw the starboard side of the Texas at all. We were never across her bow. I never was at her port side and she never approached any position that was within 600 yards of the Brooklyn. She never entered into my head at all as a menace or danger. We passed completely around the circle.

"The last range that was given was 1100 yards and the fact of the nearness of that ship (the second Spanish ship) impressed itself upon my mind because I could see with the naked eye, men running over her turrets, her superstructure deck and I observed the daylight between their legs as they ran. During the turn Mr. Hodgson very properly made some allusion to the outlook, perhaps for the Texas. I do not recall what it was, but there was never any colloquy of any character, between Hodgson and myself.

"Before we turned, the leading ship was abaft or a little abaft and when turned about she was ahead of us; that is, on the starboard bow and all four ships and the forts were firing at the same time and from that moment, the following 10 or 15 minutes were the most furious part of this entire combat. The roar of projectiles was one of the things than can be heard only once in a lifetime and then never forgotten. It appeared at that moment that all four of those ships were at work upon the Brooklyn, and up to the moment of turning, so far as we could perceive, there was not the slightest evidence that they had ever been injured. At that moment I felt that we were alone and perhaps have most of the fight upon ourselves, because I did not know then that the battleships could possibly keep up their speed. But I said to Capt. Cook we must stay with this crowd. I had not an idea that we would escape. Of course, if they could have shot as well as our people did, they certainly would have got us.

"When we had completely turned around I saw the Oregon breaking through the smoke on the starboard quarter of the flagship. I had hoisted the signal of 'close up' and then 'follow the flag,' feeling that a new disposition was necessary. The Brooklyn and the Oregon were firing in a manner I had never before realized what rapid gun fire was. Both ships were at the time a sheet of flame.

"Soon after that I saw that the leading ship was evidently battered hard. She lagged astern. I saw smoke coming out of her ports and out of her hatches and the fact that impressed itself upon me was that the columns were going straight up in the air.

"I said to Captain Cook, 'we have got one. Keep the boys below informed of all the movements, they cannot see and they ought to know,' and he did so throughout the action. Every few moments messages were sent below to the men that were answered often with cheers which we could hear through the ventilators. Shortly after I saw a ship on fire, the Oquendo. She started immediately in shore, leaving the Viscaya and the Colon. The Viscaya took a leading position on the bow and I thought for a little while she would out-foot us.

"The Colon worked in shore and the time between the dropping out of action of those two ships until the Viscaya tunned in shore was perhaps 30 minutes, during which she was abreast of the Brooklyn and Oregon, she was 2400 yards away in most excellent target range and a marine stationed in the top reported that he did not see any of the shots of the Brooklyn and the Oregon hitting the water so I imagined they were striking the ship."

Admiral Schley then told with feeling of the death of Ellis, who was the stadiometer expert.

Returning from this chase Admiral Schley told of passing the Iowa when he was hailed by Captain Evans, who informed him that Admiral Cervera was on board and would like very much to see him. Admiral Schley said that he then went aboard the Iowa, having in the meantime directed his men not to cheer as he did not think it would be proper to exult over a foe who had

THE SPIRIT THAT BUILDS A TOWN.

One of the reasons why the Central Texas Fair gives such bright promise of success is that the principal merchants of the City are backing it not only with their money but with their influence and active co-operation.

As an evidence of this fact they have unanimously agreed to close up their places of business on certain hours on the days of the Fair. This move is most commendable and deserves the praise that it will doubtless excite. Below is the agreement:

PHILADELPHIA FIRE.

Twenty Dead Bodies Found and Still Eighteen Persons Missing.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Another body has been recovered from the ruins of the Hunt, Wilkinson & Co. building on Market street, which was destroyed Friday by fire, making the number dead 20. There are still 18 missing, and it is generally believed the bodies of these are buried under the debris. The last body recovered was that of a man, but it was so badly charred as to be unrecognizable. A force of men was at work all through Friday night, but very little impression was made upon the tons of debris. and it will be some days before the number of fatalities can be definitely determined.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Eighteen known dead and property loss amounting to $500,000 is the awful result of a fire which occurred Friday in the business section of the city. Fully a score of injured were treated at various hospitals. Police and firemen delved into the ruins all Friday in search of bodies supposed to have been buried beneath the debris as it was feared that others besides the known dead may have lost their lives in the flames. The buildings destroyed were structure occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., upholsterers, and a 3-story building occupied by small merchants.

CZOLGOSZ' BODY.

His Father Will Take It to Cleveland and Bury It There.

Cleveland, Oct. 26.—Although the brother and brother-in-law of Leon Czolgosz have been at Auburn, N. Y., nothing has been heard from them by the assassin's father and he does not know whether he will see his doomed son alive again or not.

"If the boy wants to see me, and the police will let me see him, I will go there at once," said the father. "I expected to hear from Waldeck before this, but have not heard a word."

Although the father says the body of the assassin will be brought here for burial he says he has not made any arrangements for interment. He only says he will bury the body of the assassin in Cleveland if he has to buy a lot outside of the cemetery and form a cemetery of his own.

Brother Permitted to See Czolgosz.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Czolgosz's brother, Waldek, and his brother-in-law have arrived at the prison. The former was admitted, but the warden was not satisfied as to the identity of the latter and he was not allowed to enter. It is believed the visit has something to do with the claiming of the remains of the assassin after his electrocution.

Profits in Rice Culture.

Austin, Oct. 26.—Hon. Jonathan Lane of Houston, who is here on business with the railroad commission, speaks enthusiastically of the rice industry in Matagorda and Wharton counties. Mr. Lane is an officer of the Bay Prairie Rice and Irrigating company, which owns 25,000 acres of land in Wharton county, 6000 of which is in rice, and the crop is now being thrashed. He states that the yield is all the way from a minimum of 40 bushels to the acre to a maximum of 110 bushels to the acre, and that the 6000 acres grown by his company will yield a minimum of 250,000 bushels, which at an average of 80 cents per bushel would bring $200,000.

New Gas Well in Kansas.

Chanute, Oct. 26. The seventh successive well on Gas ridge, just south of here, has been brought in with twice the flow of any well in this field. Gas ridge is a comparatively new field, on considerably higher ground than the original field, a mile east, which supplies the city and has yielded 70 strong gas wells in the past 60 days. The drillers in charge assert that this one beats any they have ever drilled anywhere. Its roaring can be heard a long distance and has attracted constant streams of visitors. This well has at least 70 feet of gas sand.

Hubbard Buys Huntington Stock.

San Francisco, Oct. 26.—According to The Call advices from New York state that General Hubbard has bought all of the Huntington holdings in the Pacific Improvement company. The sum paid for 12,500 shares, or one-fourth of the stock of the corporation, was $2,500,000, or $200 per share. It is not known whether General Hubbard purchased the stock on his own account or for others. There are reports to the effect that Mrs. Stanford's 12,500 shares may soon be acquired by the same interests that purchased the Huntington stock.

Lynching at Quitman.

Minneapolis, Oct. 26.—A mob battered down the jail doors at Quitman at 9 o'clock last night and took out Gaines Gordon, a negro, and lynched him. The negro confessed to the brutal murder of Bud Shoemaker, a farmer, who was waylaid, robbed and then beaten to death last Wednesday.

Bohemian Author Buried.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Paul Allieri, the Bohemian author, killed by a railway train in Texas, was buried here Friday. Thousands of Bohemians, including a delegation from Texas and representatives of Bohemian organizations in various parts of the country were at the funeral.

Greatest Financial Power.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Sir Christopher Furness, an Englishman now visiting this city, and who is recognized as one of the most eminent authorities on financial and economic matters, declares that "the United States is destined to become the greatest financial power in the world."

THE FIRST CLASH.

Delegate from Bolivia Opposes Pan-American Congress Delegates.

City of Mexico, Oct. 26.—The discussions of the Pan-American congress are assuming a character which displeases those who are hoping for the success of the gathering. At Friday's session chapter first of the proposed regulations relative to the powers of the secretary general was approved. When chapter second was reached it was practically set aside and a committee appointed which will have power to appoint other committees to fix the points which the conference is to discuss. This may mean that all Chili's effort to secure the restriction of arbitration to future questions may prove fruitless.

Though no specially contentious points have yet been reached, a certain irritability is apparent among the members of the congress.

The delegate of Bolivia, Guachalla, flew into a rage owing to an imaginary lack of courtesy on the part of Jose Romero, a nephew of the late Ambassador Romero, and translator. He raised his voice and spoke angrily and it appeared that only a spark was needed to produce an explosion.

Boy in Prison for Life.

La Porte, Ind., Oct. 26.—Smith Jones aged but 13 years, has been received at the northern prison to serve a life sentence for murder. Warden Shideler says Jones is the youngest convict received in the history of the prison, and it is said no other penal institution in the United States has so young a prisoner who has been convicted of first degree murder. Smith Jones killed a man with a knife 12 years his senior. The latter is alleged to have taunted Jones, and the boy retaliated by drawing a knife and stabbing his victim to death.

Divorce from a Dying Husband.

Fort Dodge, Ia., Oct. 26.—While her husband was lying at a lonely farmhouse in the country at the point of death from internal injuries received in a runaway, Mrs. Chris Rayned appeared in court here as petitioner for divorce. Mrs. Rayne secured a divorce on the ground of habitual drunkenness.

Local Option Case.

Waxahatchie, Tex., Oct. 26.—The case of the state of Texas vs. R. G. Vangan, being the first of a number of local option cases from the Italy and Milford precincts, was ended here. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty and assessed the punishment at $50 fine and 40 days in jail, which with the costs will probably aggregate $600.

BRAIN-FOOD NONSENSE.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at Wilson-Jenkins Drug Co.'s store. Get Green's Special Almanac. dtf

SOUTH'S POPULATION.

Statistics Showing the Standing of Whites and Blacks.

BLACKS DECREASING

Texas Ranks First in Increase of the Whites Over All States in the Union—Are More Whites in Louisiana Than Blacks.

Baltimore, Oct. 26.—Analysis published in this week's issue of the Manufacturer's Record of the figures of the white and of the negro populations in the census of 1900 show that the movement tending toward the diffusion of the negro population more generally throughout the country has been accelerated during the past 10 years, certain northern cities having received large accessions of that class of the population, and that the white population of the south has made an increase at a slightly greater rate than the white population in the rest of the country.

The figures show that the white population of the 45 states, 4 territories and the District of Columbia within the limits of the United States increased from 55,093,283 to 66,810,711, or 11,717,428, equal to 21.25 per cent, while the increase of their negro population was from 7,488,676 to 8,833,212, or 1,444,537, equal to 17.95 per cent.

The increase in the south, including the District of Columbia and the 14 states from Maryland to Texas, the Ohio river and Missouri, was, of whites, from 12,880,893 to 15,699,304, or 2,818,411, equal to 21.88 per cent, and of negroes, from 6,710,582 to 7,335,392, or 1,244,510, equal to 16.76 per cent, while in the rest of the country the increase was from 42,312,450 to 51,111,407, or 8,898,957, equal to 21.08 per cent, and of negroes, from 778,094 to 997,820, or 219,726, equal to 28.23 per cent.

Three states in the north—New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania—had a combined increase of whites of 3,192,737, or 374,206 more than the whole increase of the same class in the south, where the greatest actual increase, as well as the greatest percentage of increase, was in Texas. The 680,734 additional inhabitants of that state represent 24 per cent of the total increase, and are but 193,101 less than the total increase of the six New England states, where Massachusetts led with an increase of 554,319 with Connecticut second with 153,985, the comparatively small increases in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont making percentages of 4.99, 9.29 and 3.42 respectively.

Of the negro population there was a decrease in California, Nebraska, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Vermont and New Mexico, while there was an increase in three Territories and 21 states, the greatest increase being, of course, in the south, Georgia leading with 176,188, followed by Mississippi with 162,371, Alabama 148,818, Texas 132,551, South Carolina 93,387, Louisiana 91,611, Florida 64,550, Arkansas 57,739 and Tennessee 49,249; four of these—Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Texas—having suggestive manifestations in comparison with the increase of the white population. The rate of negro increase was greater than that of the white in Alabama, although the actual increase was 18,616 less. Its rate was greater than that of the white in Florida and Mississippi, the actual increase of the negroes in the latter state being 65,322 more than that of the white, but in Texas the rate of the negro increase was much less than that of the white, where the actual increase of the whites was 60,000 more than the total negro population in 1900.

In 1890 three states—Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina, had more negro inhabitants than white. By 1900 Louisiana had overcome that disproportion by gaining during the 10 years 171,217 in white population and only 91,611 of negro population. Many of the Louisiana negroes went into Mississippi, but many others probably took part in the movement into Oklahoma and Indian Territory.

Three Boys Believed Murdered.

Granville, Ill., Oct. 26.—It is now believed that the three sons of Joseph Caspar who were found dead in a well on their father's farm, were murdered. It was supposed they had been suffocated by foul gas. The boys were George, Edward and Clement, aged respectively 23, 14 and 8 years. They were at work on the well two days ago, when their parents left home to attend court, and when found were dead. Physicians say they were not killed by foul air.

Strike at New Orleans.

New Orleans, Oct. 26.—The strike on the Carrollton electric road, which controls St. Charles, Jackson and Napoleon avenue lines and also Canal and Claiborne line, went into effect at 5 o'clock this morning when the motormen and conductors turned in their cars. Strike resulted from the refusal of the company to reinstate a conductor who was discharged for fighting in uniform.

Andrade Gone to Curacao.

San Juan, P. R., Oct. 26.—General Ignacio Andrade, former president of Venezuela, accompanied by his wife and eight children, have sailed for the Island of Curacao by the steamer Caracas. While General Andrade refused to be interviewed, it is no secret that he is going to Curacao in order to be nearer Venezuela. Report has it he will head a force into Venezuela.

Stolen Child Located.

Carbondale, Ill., Oct. 26.—Charles Patchett, a lad about eight years of age, was stolen from his home in Murphyboro a week ago under extraordinary conditions. The child was at play at his home, as had been his custom for months. A tramp was seen in the vicinity, and when the child was nowhere to be seen its parents found out by the neighbors that little Charley was last seen with the tramp. The police authorities received word that the tramp, together with the child, was under arrest at Dexter, Mo. William Patchett, the child's eldest brother, left at once. The abductor will be brought back for trial. The affair has been widely advertised and much interest taken in securing the child.

Fees For Charters.

New York, Oct. 26.—During the last fiscal year the state of New Jersey chartered 2342 corporations, receiving fees for filing the sum of $553,369.54. This is an increase of $168,424.67 over the similar receipts for 1900.

RELEASE OF MISS STONE.

Negotiations With Brigands Is Said to Be Progressing.

Constantinople, Oct. 26.—Negotiations with the brigands from Melnik, in the province of Salonica, for the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, and her companion, Mme. Tsilka, are progressing satisfactorily, and officials here hourly anticipate important developments.

HIDING IN TURKEY.

Bulgaria Asserts That Miss Stone Is a Captive in That Country.

New York, Oct. 26.—Minister of interior, Sarakoff of Bulgaria, has made the following statement to the Sofia correspondent of The Journal concerning the case of Miss Stone:

"If I could send my troops across the Turkish border I would find Miss Stone within two days. I have just received word from the commander of our troops that Miss Stone was not in Bulgarian territory. We have three military cordons moving toward the frontier and on the frontier itself I have placed military guards. If the brigands were on our territory the cordons would certainly find them. Ours and Turkish troops are now searching in Peron mountains where, unlike Bulgarian proper, there are no villages and only a few scattered houses in the mountains. If my troops find the brigands we will make short work of them."

CONFLICTING NEWS.

Three Reports Reach Sofia as to Whereabouts of Miss Stone.

Sofia, Oct. 26.—Three reports, each corroborative of the other, have been received from widely different sources, concerning the movements of the brigands who hold Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka captives. One report says they are near Jeltepe in Turkey; another places them on the Bulgarian frontier in a valley and the third that they are further north on Turkish ground.

Brigands in Salonica.

Constantinople, Oct. 26.—Communication has been established from Melnik, province of Salonica, with the brigands who abducted Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, and her companion Madame Tsilka.

SOUTH AFRICAN WAR.

Criticisms Continue to Be Heaped upon Great Britain by the Public.

London, Oct. 26.—There is no end of criticism current here regarding the government's conduct of war in South Africa, but it emanates chiefly from those whom Mr. Chamberlain in his speech Friday night characterized his "candied friends." The outcry does not appear to strengthen in the slightest the chances of the Liberal party.

R. O. Lehmann, who has just resigned the editorship of the Daily News, in an article by this week's Speaker admits he sees no hope for Liberalism until it has acquired and put forward a strong, definite policy in regard to South Africa. To do this, he confesses, would mean loss to the party of some of its most prominent supporters, but he maintained that even this was better than impotency.

Expects No Speedy Settlement.

Pietermaritzburg, Oct. 26.—Lord Alfred Milner is not among those prophesying a speedy settlement in South Africa. Replying to an address he said he hoped his visit to Natal would lead to tentative steps in the direction of his desire for a peaceful and prosperous South Africa, one great community under the British flag. "But," added Lord Milner, "let us not count on it coming in a hurry."

Wealth for Mrs. McKinley.

San Francisco, Oct. 26.—Mrs. Wm. McKinley was probably left more wealthy than is mentioned in the will of her dead husband. News is received from Ely, Nev., where the McKinley mine is located, that the outcroppings show a lead of ore that will go $100 to the ton. Rich surface indications at both the Saxton and McKinley mines show that a large body of ore must exist in this region, and the shares held by Mrs. McKinley in the various claims near Ely will shortly become very valuable. That there is a great deal of faith placed by capitalists in the group of mines which include the McKinley properties may be judged from the fact that William Edgar Sheppard of New York, has left for Buffalo to confer with moneyed men who are interested in the Nevada investment. Orders for mining machinery have been placed and work on the McKinley mine will shortly be commenced in earnest.
